GOLF DIGEST NAMES BOBBY WEED'S OCEAN LINKS THE #3 COURSE IN U.S. FOR WOMEN

Amelia Island, FL; March 1, 2010 – In its March issue, Golf Digest Magazine named the Ocean Links at Amelia Island Plantation the #3 course in its release of America's Top 50 Courses for Women.

The course, a collaboration between Weed and his mentor, Pete Dye, was nominated by the magazine's panel of more than 100 female raters. Judging was based on how well the layout met woman-friendly criteria established by the editors, including having at least one tee less than 5,300 yards; at least two sets of tees with USGA Slope and Course Ratings for women, minimal forced carries from the forward tees, and run-up areas to most or all greens.

"Women are the fastest growing segment of the game and any designer with his client's business interests in mind is going to address what females look for in a course." commented Bobby Weed. "Frankly, we view many of these criteria as non-gender specific – they make good design sense on a number of levels."
