#15 AT TPC RIVER HIGHLANDS NAMED ONE OF GOLF'S BEST DRIVEABLE PAR-4'S

Cromwell, CT; March 8, 2010 – Links Magazine recently named the 15th hole at the TPC River Highlands one of golf's best drivable par-4's. Weighing in at only 296 yards, the hole has long set the stage for an exciting finish at the PGA TOUR's annual Travelers Championship.

"Half-par holes like the 15th are the essence of golf," commented Bobby Weed. "They challenge both physical strength and mental acumen. The result is a timeless hole that offers interest and variety. Despite all the equipment advances in the two decades since I built the hole, the basic challenge of #15 not only remains, but has grown stronger, because the hole is within reach of more players."

About TPC River Highlands

TPC River Highlands' par-70, 6,841-yard course was completely redesigned in 1989 by Bobby Weed with PGA TOUR player consultants Howard Twitty and Roger Maltbie. Named by Golf Digest "One of the Top 10 Golf Courses in the State" and by Connecticut Golfer Online the "Best Private Course in the State" for six consecutive years, the course meanders over 148 acres, with stately corridors of mature maple, oak, sycamore and eastern white pine trees framing gently rolling fairways.
